Sojitz Opens New Office in Bengaluru, India

Sojitz India Private Ltd., (Head Office: New Delhi, India; Representative Director: Takahiro Ebisu), the local Indian subsidiary of Sojitz Corporation (“Sojitz”), has established a new office in Bengaluru, the capital of the southern Indian state of Karnataka.

Bengaluru attracts the highest number of major IT industry players in India, a country that is one of the top global hubs for start-ups. Bengaluru has become a breeding ground for start-ups offering innovative technologies and services thanks to its high population of IT professionals, and the many companies with global strategy offices and research development centers in the city.

The Bengaluru Office will serve as an important base for Sojitz’s innovation activities, following the opening of Sojitz’s San Jose office in California’s Silicon Valley. In January of this year, Sojitz invested in a venture fund operated by venture capital firm 3one4 Capital Advisors LLP (Head Office: Bengaluru), and aims to obtain a broad range of the latest information from this and other similar funds regarding AI, IoT, and related fields. Using this information, Sojitz will partner with various local start-ups to pursue the development of new businesses that will lead to the creation of new value.
